OPEN QUESTION

If yes, please provide your contact information below.

This would depend on my health and access to the info entirely. I am in Lane County and would like to help from there.

OPEN QUESTION

What was your favorite class and why?

Hard choice, but "Smart Gardening Strategies for Less Work" was best IMHO. Kathy Clark hit on all the obvious and some of the subtle issues that we all deal with, but she organized it in a way that made sense. Her handouts were simple and effective, and will help me focus on things I need to do as I seek to simplify my gardening.

No favorite class.

All the classes I signed up for were great.

OPEN QUESTION

What was your least favorite class and why?

Plant health- very general and basic information. Not MG level lecture.

My least favorite was "Plant Health Care" by Jeff Cope. He covered all the bases, but it seemed a little too simplistic for a group of MG. It was also focused a little too much on urban landscapes.

It's between Do as I say, not as I did - very few native plants for a garden that size - and the Why Natives class - due to her not citing her sources, which I happened to know.

OPEN QUESTION

Do you have any suggestions for improving the OMGA conference in the future?

A suggestion for Silent Auction pick up, if a bidder has a large number of items to pick up, it would save everyone a lot of time if those were pre-gathered before check out. It seemed like that is what slowed down pick up so much. I waited about 20 minutes at the front of the line while three wagon-loads of items were gathered for one person. thanks!

Try to include some intermediate to advanced topics.

My suggestion would be to communicate with the Dining Hall when other conferences are taking place on the same day, and make an effort to stagger the lunch hours. Two large conferences breaking for lunch at the same time on Friday overwhelmed them, and ultimately cost the university money because so many of us went elsewhere instead of spending our money there. They probably had wasted food, simply because we couldn't get served in a timely manner.
